The version that is valid at the time when the respective contract is concluded shall be authoritative. If the application of Incoterms 2020 is agreed to separately for cross-border trade, these shall only be valid if they do not contradict these General Sales and Delivery Terms or any separate agreements.

1.2. General terms and conditions of the Purchaser and any other references to commercial documents of the Purchaser which should form part of the agreement shall have no validity and are expressly contradicted.

1.3. ## 4) Delivery, transfer of risk, discovery of defects:

4.1. The stated delivery times are, unless the customer is a consumer for the purposes of the Consumer Protection Law, or unless the binding nature of the delivery time in the corporate business was expressly agreed to in writing, non-binding indications.

4.2. The relevant point in time for the transfer of risk to the customer is – in the case of sales shipments (including in cases where carriage paid or CIP delivery has been agreed on) and provided that the matter does not concern a consumer transaction – always the point in time of handover of the agreed goods to the transport company.

Any other use is not permitted and returnable containers must be returned to the Seller's warehouse including screw fittings and spigots, completely emptied and carriage paid, provided that no other agreement has been reached.

The Purchaser shall be liable for culpable damage to these as well as for returnable containers not being returned on time and in cases where the return of the returnable containers is not possible due to them having been lost, for example, the Purchaser shall be obliged to pay the replacement price.

5.3. Containers belonging to the Purchaser (including tank wagons) must be delivered to the Seller in a clean and ready to fill condition. In cases of delivery in containers belonging to the Purchaser, the Seller shall not be obliged to check the containers for their suitability or cleanliness and their use shall take place at the risk of the Purchaser. Liability of the Seller for contamination of the goods as a result of unclean containers being provided is thus excluded.

6.2. The Purchaser, provided that the matter does not concern a consumer transaction, also undertakes to leave the faulty goods in the original packaging (provided that the defect does not first become apparent in the course of use), to store them at the place at which the defect was discovered, i.e. at the goods' destination, and to give the Seller the opportunity to check the defects complained about within 8 days of the complaint being submitted, and to take a sample in situ. The Purchaser will otherwise lose its warranty claims.

6.3. If a warranty claim exists, the Seller – provided that the matter does not concern a consumer transaction – shall be entitled to choose the primary warranty remedy (improvement, replacement).
